Hyperlinks and Term

I looked for podcasts similar to what I might want to produce - interviews or local information, and I looked in 5 different categories.

Technology: Women in Tech on NPR (11:28 min) <http://www.npr.org/player/v2/mediaPlayer.html?action=1&t=1&islist=false&id=285263201&m=285263202>

Arts & Life: Around and About Chattanooga - interview of author of Empty Mansions (45:49 min)

Opinion: The Moral Is - Ida Jones on Valley Public Radio (2:19 min)

Music: Song Travels with Michael Feinstein - interview with Jose Feliciano (15:24 min)

Economy: PRI's Social Entrepreneurship - bicycle messagers in Lebanon (4:11 min)

EXTRA (not NPR-listed): MissionLocal on Soundcloud (5:27 min) <https://soundcloud.com/missionlocal/listen-local-lauren-smiley-on>

Rather than looking up new terms, I found myself looking up the variety of equipment we might need to use to create a podcast. I'm particularly intrigued by the Zoom H4N - I actually saw a woman at a coffee shop with one, and asked her to show me how it works. She's a musician, and using it for her band. Also, I found this fantastic video on

. About half-way through, the podcaster switches from using the TV audio to the audio produced by the Zoom. WOW! My only question - will I ever use it after this class? Is it worth the expense? My house is too full of old electronic gadgets!
