Commercial broadcasting started around the 1920's through the medium known as RADIO. (And directly from a Wiki on the subject) "It began with audio (sound) broadcasting services which are broadcast through the air as radio waves from a transmitter to an antenna and, thus, to a receiving device."
 In the 1950's, television was added as a new medium to do exactly what is described above for radio with the addition of moving pictures. Tell us your thoughts after all of this reading you have done for the past week how you think the Podcast has changed traditional broadcasting. Has it made it better? (2 pts)
